How to Tell Jokes!

1. KNOW the joke.
   Make sure you remember the whole joke before you tell it. This sounds like a no-brainer, but most of us have known someone who says, “Oh, this is so funny…” Then, when they tell the joke, they can’t remember the end. And that’s the whole point of a joke — its punch line.

2. SPEAK CLEARLY.
   Don’t mumble; don’t speak too fast or too slow. Just speak like you normally do. You don’t have to use a different voice or accent or sound like someone else. (UNLESS that’s part of the joke!)

3. LOOK at your audience.
   Good eye contact with your listeners will grab their attention.

4. DON’T WORRY about gestures or how to stand or sit when you tell your joke. Remember, telling a joke is basically talking.

5. DON’T LAUGH at your own joke.
   Yeah, yeah, I know some comedians break up while they’re acting in a sketch or telling a story, but the best rule to follow is not to laugh. If you start to laugh, you might lose the rhythm of your joke or keep yourself from telling the joke clearly. Let your audience laugh. That’s their job. Your job is to be the funny one.

6. THE PUNCH LINE is the most important part of the joke.
   It’s the climax, the payoff, the main event. A good joke can sound even better if you pause for just a second or two before you deliver the punch line. That tiny pause will make your audience mentally sit up and hold their breath, eager to hear what’s coming next.

7. The SETUP is the second most important part of a joke.
   That’s basically everything you say before you get to the punch line. And that’s why you need to be as clear as you can (see 2 above) so that when you finally reach the punch line, it makes sense!

8. YOU CAN GET FUNNIER.
   It’s easy. Watch other comedians. Listen to other people tell a joke or story. Check out a good comedy show or film. You can pick up some skills simply by seeing how others get their comedy across. You will absorb it! And soon it will come naturally.

9. Last, but not least, telling a joke is all about TIMING.
   That means not only getting the biggest impact for your joke, waiting for the right time, giving that extra pause before the punch line — but it also means knowing when NOT to tell a joke. When you’re among friends, you can tell when they’d like to hear something funny. But in an unfamiliar setting, get a “sense of the room” first. Are people having a good time? Or is it a more serious event? A joke has the most funny power when it’s told in the right setting.

How is Michael Dahl different from a mousetrap?

One is full of tales, and the other is full of tails!

Dahl has come up with more than two hundred good plots, in the form of books, for young readers. He is the author of The Everything Kids' Joke Book, Laff-O-Tronic Joke Books, the scintillating Duck Goes Potty, and two humorous mystery series: Finnegan Zwake (a "wisecracking riot" according to the Chicago Tribune) and Hocus Pocus Hotel. He toured the country with an improv troupe and began his auspicious comic career in fifth grade when his stand-up routine made his music teacher laugh so hard she fell off her chair. She is not available for comment.

How is Scott Jeralds like a stampeding rhino?

They're both smash hits!

Jeralds has worked in animation for companies including Marvel Studios, Hanna-Barbera Studios, M.G.M. Animation, Warner Bros., and Porchlight Entertainment. Scott has worked on TV series such as The Flintstones, Yogi Bear, Scooby-Doo, The Jetsons, Krypto the Superdog, Tom and Jerry, The Pink Panther, Superman, Secret Saturdays, and he directed the cartoon series Freakazoid, for which he earned an Emmy Award. In addition, Scott has designed cartoon-related merchandise, licensing art, and artwork for several comic and children's book publications.
